The Ending of Contracts

As you look at relationships in your life, you may be seeing those that just may no longer resonate for you and feel that it is time to move on. What you are realizing is contracts written prior to this lifetime with various wonderful and glorious souls are coming to a close and nearing their expiration date. This varies for each and every one of you.

With these expiring contracts comes an inordinate amount of feelings because you are in the final chapter of letting go of attachments that you have to anyone and anything outside of your self. You are moving to this place because you have made a steadfast commitment toward Self Mastery and because of this the feelings that are surfacing are so at a greater depth than you have ever felt before.

You are opening up to the depth and breadth of the gloriousness of the Self and realize that nothing outside of your self matters as to who you are. It is all about You and not about You at the same time. You are discovering and beginning to own who you are. As you own and embody you and move into a place of knowing it, you may be finding what you came here for and came here to do by just being you.

As these contracts are expiring you may find yourself standing on the pathway seemingly alone. The depth and breadth of feelings are coming up because you are looking at these relationships and the attachments to these wonderful and glorious souls. These relationships exist because you had entered into a contract prior to your third dimensional lifetime. It is very important for you to know that the contract was signed, sealed and delivered prior to your soul fragment entering into this third dimensional realm, into this lifetime.

The duration of this contract varies from soul to soul.

You are finding as the contracts are ending you are letting go of old paradigms and patterns. Many are looking at the wonderful and glorious souls where the contract pervades, and having a myriad of feelings about that person. The feelings may vary from joyousness and love to despise and anger.

It is time to look at these wonderful and glorious souls and see the contract. Take the time to find out what you have learned in the relationship. These relationships are simply a proxy for the old in your life. Look at where your energy is best spent now as you move forward from the relationship.

Find one poignant relationship that has taught you much.

What you have learned is now allowing you to close the contract on your end, regardless if this person knows about the contract. Doing this allows you to end the contract, look at the expiration date of the contract whether it is in print or energetically and realize that you are now coming to endings.

These endings may frighten you.

They frighten you because as you move into the depth and breadth of the silence, the void, the darkness and these endings approach you are finding that there is nothing to hold onto any longer. You are releasing your old attachments to what is outside of you and may no longer serve your highest good.
