

Teachings of Archangel Michael

Channeled by Jeff Fasano

The Pathway to Love

Are you in a place of excitement for living life. Can you let go of what isn't and be with what is? When you look at what is in your life you see the glass as full.

Move into the depth and breadth of your heart and as you are walking on the pathway of living your life is their excitement for it? Are you excited to see what door opens next? It is important that you now live the process you know as life. Live it! Open to the joy of life. Open to the joy of What is. Not to the absence of what isn't.

Ask:

What is in my life right now?

What are my talents and gifts where I am right now?

The challenge is to fully release the old and step into the unknown with your talents and gifts. Are you ready to walk on the pathway into the unknown being who you are?

Are you seeking where you think you should be going? Can you release this and remain on the pathway to see those coming to you and the doorways as they open? Then meet them to move through these doorways together.

Move now into your intuition to see where you need to be, a specific vortex perhaps at a certain place and time. It is from your heart that you will live life and the only place from where you can share you with the world. It is where the essence of you resides.

You are at a place where you may be standing at the edge of the cliff and looking for those around you to gather at the bottom so that if you jump you will know that everyone will be there and it will be familiar to you.

Can you now walk into the unknown and know that all you need is you and be who you are?

Each of you has a note that is within the soul and it is love. Each of you is an individual yet there has always been the intention to return to the family or home. Home is what resonates and vibrates within the depth of your heart where joy, peace, love, equality, harmony, and community exist.

This is a place where no one is better nor worse than another. It is a place where you are who you are and accepted for who you are innately in the depth and breadth of your heart. And you are here together with others in harmony, community and equality. This is "The We" the new soul family and what you call "home".

Home is what resonates in the depth and breadth of your heart that is simply acceptance and compassion for you, who you are and your essence. When you reach there you will know love. Not so much love of another nor love of self. Love is not something that is tangible, that you can hold on to or control and manipulate. It is not love of another or love of self for these are mere tangible explanations of the energy that is love, the God force, the Christ consciousness, the I Am.

Love is a frequency, a vibration in the depth of your true beingness, the essence of you. It is not tangible. You cannot smell it, taste it, hear it, touch it, see it or feel it. It is a resonance, there is no drama or glamour to it, it is simply a beingness. It is a connection to the Christ Consciousness that resides in each and every wonderful and glorious soul who inhabits your planet. It is time if you so choose to connect to this.