A Message for August 2021

Honoring Yourself

From the Archangelic Realm of Michael this is Michael and We come to you as you are now moving into a new parameter in your life on the earthly plain. You are moving through the generations and the vibrations of your earthly plain as you move into your month of August and into the second half of your year of 2021.

You are moving into a fruition of self and loving, honoring and valuing your-self to a greater extent. What We mean by this is many are beginning to open their heart space. Open their heart space to the universe, the world outside and moving within and speaking your truth. Fully speaking your truth through the aspects of your-self that you never have before. This is because you are now moving into honoring your-self. Honoring you and the depth and breadth of who you are, what you've accomplished, what you have learned and where you have grown to be where you are right now. You are realizing that one of the most important aspects of your incarnation on this earthly plain is to express your-self. To fully express all of you and every aspect of you to speak your truth and your word with impeccability.

So now as you move into your month of August, We bring you the third part of these teachings and it is about about honoring your-self and honor in general, more so about honoring your-self. Honoring your path. Honoring from where you began this path of self mastery to where you are right now. Are you fully honoring that path? Are you honoring what it took for you to move on that path? When you look into the mirror and directly into your eyes, to see how far you have come in this process of self mastery to where you are now, are you honoring that? Look at what you have accomplished in this lifetime based upon world service and giving to others. Open the depth and breadth of your heart space so you move into a personal growth system. Look at where you have set up a personal growth system for your-self where you are constantly in a place of moving within, releasing layers of wounding then moving into the fullness and greatness of your spiritual beingness.

We use this term spiritual beingness because that is the term you use for the growth within. Moving and connecting to the spirit of fifth dimensional energies and opening your heart space to the multi-dimensional beingness of your-self. Are you honoring this? Are you honoring where you began this process and looking at where you are now? In many ways We are asking you to look at the glass as full.

Looking at you now as the glass being filled. Honoring your pathway, honoring you and your commitment to your-self. Fully honoring and valuing who you have become in the spiritual beingness of you, in the God-like, Christ Consciousness of your-self. Raising your resonance and vibration to a level you have never dreamed you could. Where you can now look at the third dimensional realm outside of you and see it for what it is. See the illusion of it. And also see where you have supported and guided others on their pathway to see and be who they are.

Now, as you move into your month of August, can you now begin to honor where you are in your life? What have you accomplished in your life? Not what you have accomplished in the material aspects of the third dimensional realm, but what you have accomplished within your-self. Where you have grown, where you have opened your heart space more deeply to love, honor and value you. Where you have opened your heart space to love you and in turn love others. See where you have released your attachments to the third dimensional realm. See where you are now moving in the sphere and energy of high vibration as the individuated adult and have released your attachments to the past of your life and mom and dad. And you are now a fully individuated soul on this earthly plain vibrating at a resonance that you never have before where you no longer need what is transpiring in the third dimensional realm and it no longer affects you. You are now a fully sustained being within your-self. Thus creating a new collective consciousness with others.

So We ask, what is your consciousness right now?

We remind you and ask, are you still looking outside of you attached to what is transpiring in the world outside of you? Or can you observe what is transpiring in the world and see you as a fully encompassed spiritual being within you. Resonating and vibrating and containing your own energy and observing what is transpiring in the world but you are sustaining your-self. You are sustaining your-self in the high vibrational beingness of your-self. Can you honor this?

Now, in your month of August We ask you to simply look at your life and recapitulate your life. Look at where you began this process of self mastery and look at where you are now. Look at how you view your relationships. Look at where you have begun to love your-self more dearly so you can look at your relationships and at those who no longer champion your highest good. And now most importantly, you know what your highest good is. You know who you are. In many ways you no longer need to search outside of you for your-self and who you are. You no longer need to get the answers outside of you to know who you are, to love who you are, to honor who you are to value you.

You can look outside of you for those to support and guide you on your pathway to hold you in the highest light and love. And when you move into blind spots open your heart space to others simply for the support and guidance and possibly the knowledge that will help you move through your blind spot. This is intimacy. This is collective consciousness with others outside of you of like mind and like soul'd individuals who are resonating and vibrating at a similar level as you if not the same level. Those who have opened their heart space to love, honor and value themselves to look into the mirror, look at themselves.

No longer do you need to look at what you may think you need to fix about you. Or look at what you need to shift and change about you though that is something that will continue until you make your transition from this earthly plain. It is now looking at the wholeness of you, the wholeness of your beingness. Looking now at what is transpiring in your life that fulfills you. Are you fulfilled within you and are you no longer looking outside of you to fill some mythical emptiness inside of you? The illusion of emptiness inside of you.

It is now time to see that you have moved to this place in time on your earthly plain where what is transpiring outside of you is shifting and changing more quickly than it ever has before. Where you now in many ways can stand in the pillar of strength and powerfulness for others simply by being who you are. There is no need to fix anything in life about you. You are a full, sustaining individuated adult now moving on a pathway, resonating at a high vibration to move into the beingness of who you are.

Yes, you can seek greater knowledge outside of you but you no longer need it to sustain you. It is about seeing what you have accomplished, utilizing the tools and the knowledge and what has come to you from multi-dimensional realms and bring it to the world.

It is about looking at your-self now and fully honoring your path, your commitment to yourself, honoring what you have shifted and change about you, honoring the process of growth that you have at times endured inside of you. You continue to move on as you keep growing in each and every step you take.

Many feel as if they are moving to their demise, the end of their life. If you can shift that to say, I am still growing in my life and when this growth period ends in this incarnation in this lifetime that I have chosen on this earthly plain, this is when I will transition. When I cease growing I will transition. When you end your growth period in this lifetime you will then transition.

It is most important to shift that within you if you so choose. You are continually and endlessly growing inside of you. Growing to a place where your resonance and vibration will raise to the point where it will no longer be able to sustain itself on this earthly plain. This is when you will transition.

So it is a period of time of growth that you have chosen on this earthly plain. This is what you can honor. If you look at life from the perspective that each and everyday you are growing to your full potential as opposed to looking at it where each and every day you are moving towards dying, it is then when you reach that potential based in your soul's divine plan you will then transition. It is all based in the divine plan of the soul. As you wake each day you will be growing more and learning more about you, the depth and breadth of you and why you are here.

As you move into this month of August and through the second half of your year of 2021, what you will see are growth spurts, moving to the fruition of aspects of your life that you have always said you wanted. This is based upon beginning to honor your-self, your pathway, your commitment and the courageousness within you that said, I am ready to look into the mirror and grow so I can serve this world that I incarnated into by being who I am.
