A Message for October 2026

A Time to See Your Value

From the Archangelic Realm of Michael this is Michael and We come to you as you are now opening up to the depth and breadth of your heart space and moving deeper into your heart space and beginning to look at the value of who you are, the value of your life, the value at what you are giving to the world as you move into your month of October.

In many ways as you move into your month of October, it is a month of value. Valuing yourself. Valuing the relationships that raises your resonance and vibration and champion your highest good. Valuing your talents, gifts and abilities. Valuing the endeavors you are bringing to the world. As you begin to value yourself, value your talents, gifts and abilities, value your endeavors and valuing relationships, in many ways you are moving back to basics and center of why you are here in the third dimensional realm, why you have incarnated into the third dimensional realm. This is because you are beginning to move into the value of why you are here, and the value of yourself so you now can open your heart space, move on the pathway through life knowing who you are, valuing who you are, thus valuing what you are giving and bringing to the world. Not only through your endeavors, your talents, gifts and abilities, but simply valuing who you are in the depth and breadth of your heart space. Which is why in many ways through our teachings and the teachings of others are moving you on that pathway, guiding you on that pathway, taking your hand and leading you on that pathway of loving, honoring and valuing yourself.

In many ways as you move into your month of October, the month is focused, the energetic focus is on, what do you value about yourself. Make a list if it is appropriate for you. What do you value about yourself? What do you value about your talents, gifts and abilities? What do you value about your endeavors you are bringing to the world? If you can see that value and know what you giving to others and in turn this is the basis for the balance of giving and receiving. Valuing who you are, valuing your talents, gifts and abilities, valuing your endeavors, valuing your modalities begins to tell others who you are. And as you do that and value all of that, you will then open your heart space if you choose, to the full balance, the full meaning, of the balance of giving and receiving.

When you are valuing what you are giving, valuing the energy that you put forth in the world, you then open up to know what is important to you to receive that exchange of energy. It is simply about an exchange of energy. But as you put forth your energy out in the world without knowing the full value of that you may cut yourself off from receiving in balance.

As you move into your month of October it is about looking at the value the value of you, the value of your endeavors, and the value of your relationships. Again, looking at the balance of giving and receiving in relationships. What We mean when We tell you, is a relationship raising your resonance and vibration, that has to do with receiving from another. If you are blocked from receiving love, in some way, shape or form it is based on how much you value and honor you in relationships. As you move into the depth and breadth of your heart space and begin to cultivate your value, you will then know that value in relationships with others. And thus, open up a myriad of aspects of your wounding in your relationships to that. Thus, leading you to feeling your feelings when you feel not good enough, not perfect enough, not worthy enough. When you begin to focus on your value in a more conscious, adult fashion, you will then be able to look at those feelings but see a foundation of value within you. Thus, another tool to utilize when you begin to feel not good enough when the wounded child begins to feel not good enough, not worthy enough, not perfect enough. You then will be able to see more consciously and be more aware of it through the foundation you build of value.

Do you honor and value you?

It is why We continuously speak to you about loving, honoring and valuing you. Your month of October is about focusing on your value. What do you value about you? What do you value about your consciousness of where you are in your evolutionary process? Do you value that you have moved through this evolutionary process, continuing to move through it, making the commitment to release the wounding, release the trauma, raise your awareness and consciousness to self? Where is your value in that? Do you value that you have raised your consciousness and awareness to you to distinguish between the wounded child and the adult within you? As you now make yourself more aware of what is transpiring within you, do you value that within you? Do you value that you have raised your awareness and consciousness to self?

As you move into your month of October and through your month of October it is most important if you so choose, that you spend this time seeing your value.
