

Archangel Michael Speaks

Channeled by Jeff Fasano

Law of Attraction

By being who you are and loving, honoring and valuing you, you move into a greater sense of self. By moving into the depth and breadth of your heart space by doing your inner work, you release wounding and conditioning and raise your consciousness and awareness to who you are beneath the wounding. By doing this you raise your resonance and vibration and move into a place of beingness.

The Law of Attraction is not solely about projecting thoughts out into the world and thinking that just because you do, it will attract what you say you want. It is about being the thoughts and being who you are. Yes, it is important to set your intentions and state your affirmations, know what you want and release it out into the world. But it is about being who you are in your truth with love, with a full knowingness that you are living your soul's divine plan. It is at this high vibrational level you send you out to the world in the beingness of self.

When thoughts and feelings of doubt, questioning, judgment and shame arise, allow them to be there. It is not about getting rid of them.

Perhaps you are saying:

"I should have gotten rid of this feeling of not good enough."

"If I am feeling not good enough then I will attract others who are feeling not good enough."

"There I go again, repeating old patterns, habits and rituals. I should have gotten rid of that. If I am still doing this I must be attracting that."

This in and of itself is old conditioning.

If you find yourself saying any of this, It is important to acknowledge it and accept yourself in the moment with compassion.

For example saying to yourself:

"Yes, I am feeling not good enough."

Then ask, can I accept that and have compassion for me.

Then, what do I need?

"I am being myself in the moment of feeling not good enough."

It is about being who you are in those moments and remaining at a high level of resonance and vibration. Honor and value you in your moment of doubt and questioning. When you do this you remain at a higher level of resonance and vibration and you will begin to attract those in your life who are doing the same at the same or similar resonance and vibration.

It is not so much about directing your thoughts out into the world, it is about maintaining a high level of resonance and vibration.

You can look to begin releasing aspects of your life that is of a low, dense vibration. Perhaps releasing drama in your life.

You can look at your relationships. Are you condemning the relationship, the person?

Move to a place of higher resonance and vibration within you that is love, peace, community, harmony and equality. By doing this and loving, honoring and valuing you more, you may see that a relationship no longer resonates for you. This is because you are becoming more aware and conscious that the relationship may no longer serves your highest good.

This pertains to the relationship you are having with anything or anyone. Perhaps the relationship to your career, to another person, to the vortex of energy you are living in. Moving within in an inner process is important so you can grow and raise your level of resonance and vibration. So you can see what serves your highest good through loving, honoring and valuing you and move towards that.

It is important to understand that what you are imparting upon the world outside of you is your beingness with love and your level of resonance and vibration. You then attract the same or similar energy.

The Law of Attraction simply begins with you being you in your truth. It is where you are and who you are in each and every moment. Fully realizing what you want, what you need, your talents and gifts, and your modalities. By being and doing this you will naturally and organically present it to the world and will attract similar in kind.