

Archangel Michael Speaks

Channeled by Jeff Fasano

The World 2020

Time to Assess Your Life and Your Relationships

From the Archangelic Realm of Michael this is Michael and We come to you as you are beginning to realize the truth about you, your life and your relationships. Many are being forced to be with themselves and look at themselves. In turn as this transpires you are being asked to look at your relationships. Many are seeing how the relationship was defined and how it was formed was through the wounds of the child and the myths and illusions you have about your life.

What is transpiring for many is truth is rising from within.

As you look at yourself in relation to what transpiring in the world right now, you are being asked to look at those who you are in relationship with. Truth is rising on your earthly plain. It is rising in the world outside of you, where you are seeing the untruths in the world, the inequality, the duality. Many now are seeing this in their relationships as well and the illusions and where resonance and non-resonance lies.

As the world outside of you has taken a brief pause in this episode of your life, what is being asked of you is to move deeper within. Many are looking at the relationship they are having with themselves and the relationships they are having with others. If you look at the relationship you are having with your self this will awaken you to the reason why you have formed certain relationships with others. You will realize the relationships that champion and support your highest good. You will see the relationships that champion your endeavors and resonate and vibrate for you as you move deeper within. You then will also see the relationships that were built on illusion, the illusion and myth of the wounded child. You will see if you continue to look outside of you for validation, gratification, for your needs to be met. Quite possibly look at those with whom you are in relationship with saying, "You should support my needs, satisfy them and gratify them. This is your job and why we are in this relationship." Many are being forced to see the comforts of the relationship. Quite possibly now you are being forced to move together and energetically be together. Thus being forced to see the illusion of the relationship that is based on the wounds of the child looking for mom and dad. Many are now seeing this and the basis of the relationship that is based in illusion.

Most important for those who have the ability to move into the depth and breadth of the heart space to love, honor and value themselves more deeply, is to open communication with an other to see where they are in the relationship and what can be looked at. Not scrutinized, but looked at in harmony, community, and peace as adults. So the question is, can you move into your heart where your adult lies and look at your relationships from that place? As opposed to looking at the relationship through the eyes of the 5 year old seeking mom and dad to take care of them. Many are being forced now to look at themselves and their relationships. Now seeing what relationships are based in the heart space, the adult, and those based upon the wounded child.

Many are taking a look at their life and seeing what resonates and what no longer resonates. Many are consciously seeing the old and not wanting to repeat the old. Many are being asked to look at their physical geographical location. Many are now moving to a place in this grand global pause, to assess their life, their relationships, what is transpiring in the world and the physical geographical location they are living in. As this transpires you can ask, What serves my highest good moving forward and toward into the unknown?

You are now living in a vast unknown.

Many are trying to hold onto the old to keep what they know and comfortable with in place. Many want to move back into the old life because that is the life that they know and is comfortable. Yet for the majority, based on what is happening in the world today, that old life can no longer perpetuate.

In the macrocosm of life, what you are seeing in the world outside of you, is the old coming to the fore in a grand gesture so it can be released. These are the old belief systems. What is being revealed in your world now are the untruths, the myths and illusions and the old world of form before your very eyes.

This is happening in the microcosm of your life as well. The myths and illusions are becoming transparent. The way you can look at this is by asking yourself, where am I being transparent and authentic with myself? You can look at your relationships and ask, what is transparent and authentic about them? These relationships are those you are having with an other and your geographical location.

What is transpiring in the world in the "spiritual" context is you are being asked to look at your life and at your comfort zones. For many your relationships have been comfortable. The comfort of those relationships is being revealed. The familiarity of another and the illusion of that is being revealed.

On the other hand, many are deepening their relationships with others because they are choosing to deepen the relationship they are having with themselves. Relationships with others are being fortified based upon moving into the depth and breadth of the heart space and coming from the adult perspective. Quite possibly communication is opening and shifting in relationships, breaking through barriers and walls and masks.

What is transpiring is the mask is being cracked open and many are being revealed for who they truly are in the macrocosm of life and the microcosm of your own personal life.

You are now being asked to take a magnifying glass and look at your life and your relationships, to look at the fine print.

What is transpiring in your world right now is an eruption of the old, an eruption of old belief systems. The picture is being painted for you very clearly if you choose to look at it. If you do it will bring up deep repressed and suppressed feelings and you will see your comfort zones revealed.

If you choose to look at relationships in your personal life, there is an eruption there as well. You are being asked to discern what is most important to you. You might see a difference in the relationship. You might be choosing to grow and the other is choosing the old to remain comfortable.

What you are seeing now is the rising of the truth of every aspect of your life.